

Student Events at the AAR Annual Meeting in Chicago, November 17–20, 2012

Student Lounge

McCormick Place West, Room 195

Saturday-Monday, 8:00 AM to 5:00 PM

The Student Lounge is a place for students to relax in the midst of the hectic Annual Meeting. We hope that you will take advantage of the free coffee and chance to talk with fellow students. The lounge will be located in the McCormick Place West, Room 195 and will be open Saturday–Monday, 8:00 AM–5:00 PM. The Graduate Student Committee has also organized a series of roundtable discussions on topics related to professionalization and student life. We invite you to join us for coffee and snacks as we discuss the following topics.

Roundtable Discussions

A17-137

How to Organize a Graduate Student Conference

Saturday - 10:00 AM-11:00 AM

Kristopher Norris, University of Virginia, Philip Lorish, University of Virginia, and Christina McRorie, University of Virginia

Graduate student conferences are becoming increasingly popular venues for sharing research and networking in religious and theological studies. Graduate students have also developed valuable skills as members of the planning committees for these events. If you have ever considered organizing a conference at your institution, or are simply curious about the steps of this process, join us for a discussion with some of the coordinators of the 2012 Virginia Graduate Colloquium on Theology, Ethics, and Culture. The panel will share their experiences planning and executing this successful Colloquium, including tips on advertising, securing funding, organizing panels, getting faculty involved, and more!

A17-333

Academic Employment is More Hopeful Than It Seems

Saturday - 4:00 PM-5:00 PM

Matthew Hill, Spring Arbor University

At first glance, the prospect of finding academic jobs after graduate school seems bleak. Positions are few and competition is high. Yet there is reason to be hopeful. Most graduate students have numerous connections to multiple colleges and universities. Tapping into this network is easier than it seems. A large part of this discussion will revolve around learning how to locate and use one's network to get hired as an ABD or new PhD. We will also focus on developing new connections and adjusting CVs to fit a variety of possible employees. Through my own journey of finding an assistant professorship while ABD, as well as being part of a department that has made some recent hires, I hope to discuss what academic employers are looking for and to show that getting hired is not only possible, but also realistic.

A18-141

An Effective Drug-free Antidote to Chronic Stress:

Mindfulness Meditation

Sunday - 10:00 AM-11:00 AM

Fitri Junoes, University of Hong Kong

Graduate students have to contend with the stresses of academia: deadlines, proposals, assignments, presentations, and expectations. These stresses, and many more, result in a decrease in mind clarity and productivity. This workshop introduces mindfulness meditation as an effective drug-free antidote for this problem. During the first half of the workshop, participants will engage in a hands-on exercise to understand the reality of the situation by creating an awareness of the interdependence of circumstances. The goal of this exercise is to see objectively the nature of the problem and create space that allows flexibility without getting caught up in the web of confusion and anxiety. The remainder of the workshop will feature a guided meditation for stress reduction. The overall expected result of mindfulness meditation is a calmer mind.

A18-288

Demystifying Comprehensive Exams

Sunday - 3:00 PM-4:00 PM

Join fellow graduate students in this roundtable conversation on comprehensive exams for thoughts on getting started, getting finished, and everything in between. Though institutions have different criteria for their exams, there are strategies to successfully completing this process that can be employed by students from diverse disciplines. Tips will be offered to master one's exams with as little pain as possible, including allocating time for studying and creating study aids. We will also discuss common challenges that students face at this stage in their program. Individuals will leave this session with concrete methodological approaches that can be tailored to their specific needs and institutional requirements. Participants are encouraged to bring their institutions' exam requirements for our discussion.

Panelists:

Theresa Yugar, Claremont Graduate University

Jennifer Adler, Vanderbilt University

A19-139

Building Classroom Community: Engaging Students and Powerful Pedagogy

Monday 10:00 AM-11:00 AM

Effective teaching relies on building rapport with your students and a strong classroom community. This discussion will canvas strategies to help you create culturally relevant pedagogy, design effective group projects, encourage a student-centered classroom, empower learners for creative reflection, and connect with your students from day one. Teaching resources will be provided and participants will have ample opportunity to share stories and ask questions about the way we relate to our students in the classroom.

Panelists:

Joshua Canzona, Georgetown University

A19-332

Distance Education: Challenges and Rewards

Monday - 4:00 PM-5:00 PM

As distance education programs are being offered by a growing number of institutions—specifically in the field of religious studies—students that are unable or unwilling to relocate are now given access to more respected institutions and professors. This workshop will cover the major challenges and rewards of a distance program, as well as tips for those considering such approaches. This discussion will be led by a graduate student entering his final year of a M.A. Religion (New Testament) program through Reformed Theological Seminary's virtual campus.

Panelists:

Jon Jordan, Reformed Theological Seminary

A16-201

Pre-Conference Workshop: Wabash Center Workshop for Graduate Students

Friday - 1:00 PM-5:00 PM

Cosponsored by the Wabash Center for Teaching and Learning in Theology and Religion, the American Academy of Religion Graduate Student Committee, and the Society of Biblical Literature Student Advisory Board

Open to graduate students who are teaching or may in the near future teach, this workshop focuses turning one's teaching philosophy into effective lesson planning and design. Participants will submit by October 1 a one-page teaching philosophy statement and a sample syllabi from a course they have taught, want to teach, or that has been taught in their department. Intentional reflection on the context of teaching and the student learners at its core will lead to practical classroom strategies for the participant's own context. Instructional experts will present and lead discussion. Because one's teaching philosophy is a crucial element to any job interview, graduate students involved in teaching will surely not want to miss this opportunity

Panelists:

Almeda Wright, Pfeiffer University

Eugene Gallagher, Connecticut College

Rolf Jacobson, Luther Seminary

A17-135

LGBTIQ Mentoring Lunch

Melissa M. Wilcox, Whitman College, Presiding

Saturday - 11:45 AM-12:45 PM

All students and junior scholars who identify outside of normative gender histories and/or sexualities are welcome to join us for an informal lunch. No fee or preregistration is required; please bring your own lunch. A cash-and-carry station will be nearby the room for those wishing to buy their lunches on-site.

Panelists:

Claudia Schippert, University of Central Florida

Cameron Partridge, Harvard University

Mary E. Hunt, Women's Alliance for Theology, Ethics, and Ritual

Rudy V. Busto, University of California, Santa Barbara
Kent Brintnall, University of North Carolina, Charlotte
Patrick Cheng, Episcopal Divinity School
Horace Griffin, Pacific School of Religion
W. Scott Haldeman, Chicago Theological Seminary
Rebecca Alpert, Temple University
Mark Jordan, Harvard University
Laurel Schneider, Chicago Theological Seminary
Jennifer Harvey, Drake University
Heather White, New College of Florida

A18-139

Committees on the Status of Women in the Profession and the Status of Racial and Ethnic Minorities in the Profession Women's Mentoring Lunch

Judith Plaskow, Hebrew Union College, Presiding
Melanie Harris, Texas Christian University, Presiding
Sunday - 11:45 AM-12:45 PM

Female graduate students and women in the early stages of their careers are invited to come and engage in informal conversation with mid-career and senior scholars. The setting allows participants to ask questions that they might not feel comfortable raising in job interviews or in their home institutions. To register, see here.

"Religion Beyond the Boundaries" Public Lecture Series

The AAR is committed to fostering the public understanding of religion. Inspired by this goal, the Graduate Student Committee has organized two evenings of public talks in Chicago. Student members will present their cutting-edge research in these innovative evening sessions, designed to move our discussions of religion out of the traditional academic setting of the Annual Meeting and into the community. This year's talks center around two themes: Religion and Politics and Religion and Economics. Plan to join us for these stimulating talks and discussions!

A18-336

Religion and Politics Session

Sunday, November 18, 2012, 6:00PM-8:00pm
Lutheran School of Theology at Chicago
1100 E. 55th Street, Chicago, IL 60615

"The Secularist Movement: An Overview of the Lobbying and Legal Efforts of America's Organized Nonbelievers"

Joseph Blankholm, Columbia University

"Religious Liberty, Partisan Politics, and Catholic Fissures"

Joshua Canzona, Catholic University of America

"President Obama, Historically Black Churches, and Public Discourse about Same-Sex Marriage"

Jermaine M. McDonald, Emory University

"Race, Morality, and U.S. Politics"

Rima Vesely-Flad, Sarah Lawrence College

A19-333

Religion and Economics Session

Monday November 19, 2012, 6:00PM-8:00PM

Meadville Lombard Theological School (inside the Spertus Center)

610 South Michigan Avenue, Chicago, IL 60605

"Morality and Spirituality: The Missing Link for Economic Development in the 21st Century"

Greg Kame, University of South Africa

"Legislating Pluralism: Faith-Based Prisons and the Privatization of Morality"

Brad Stoddard, Florida State University

"Seeing Buddha, Selling Buddha: The Economy of Buddhist Imagery in the US"

Peter M. Romaskiewicz, University of California-Santa Barbara

A17-309

Teaching Tactics Lightning Round

Sponsored by the Teaching Religion Section

Eugene Gallagher, Connecticut College, Presiding

Saturday - 4:00 PM-6:30 PM

McCormick Place West-176C

The session will present teaching tactics in a timed format. Each tactic will be distributed, and the author will clarify its content. There will be time for discussion of each tactic and a general discussion to close the session.

Ramon Madrigal, Florida College, Top Ten Weird Acts of the Prophets

Lindsay McNulty, Catholic University of America, Imagination and Pacing: Key Tactics in Helping Modern Students to Relate to Christian History

Corey Harris, Alvernia University, Using Pop Culture to Establish Perspective

Brandon Withrow, Winebrenner Theological Seminary, Learning by Listening: Classroom Assignments and Strategies Aimed at Individual Barriers to the Discussion of Religion in Higher Education

David Howell, Ferrum College, Background Knowledge Probe in an Upper-level Course

Sarah Sours, King's College, Visualizing Intertextuality: Icons and Highly Allusive Texts

A18-200

Imagined Solidarities: Common Cause or Conflicting Interests among Undergraduate Students and Their Faculties?

Sunday - 1:00 PM-2:30 PM

McCormick Place East-263

Louis Ruprecht, Georgia State University, Presiding

Richard M. Carp, St. Mary's College, California, Presiding

The professional lives of most members of the AAR depend on undergraduate students. Many of us spend the majority of our time working with undergraduates, and undergraduates—either directly through tuition or indirectly through taxpayer support—pay most of our salaries as well. Yet it seems that students and faculties at American colleges and universities find little practical solidarity with one another during the current, extended financial and moral crises within the Academy. What is the actual character of our relationships as they take place in our classrooms, offices, and elsewhere, and how do these relationships affect our sense of solidarity and/or mutual care? This special session queries several possible ways of imagining this complex relationship, only some of which create the possibility of genuine solidarity. All of these imaginative relations are probably present for each of us in some degree, though different faculty's comfort with one or more form of such imagining may vary greatly. How do these relationships, real and imagined, play out in our actual contexts? To what extent do they (or should they) manifest mutual caring and/or result in solidarities potent enough to affect our institutions? How have the new economic challenges (rising tuition and student fees, pay cuts and furloughs for faculty, growing class size, general malaise) and the moral complexities they generate make such solidarities easier or more difficult to imagine and sustain?

Panelists:

Timothy Peoples, Adrian College

Brock Bingaman, Wesleyan College

Lucia Hulsether, Harvard University

Wes Barker, Georgia State University

Lucas Johnston, Wake Forest University

Kate Daley-Bailey, University of Georgia

A18-211

Teaching Religion Section and SBL Academic Teaching and Biblical Studies Section and Wabash Center for Teaching and Learning in Theology and Religion (Roundtable Discussions)

Sunday - 1:00 PM-2:30 PM

McCormick Place West-175A

Paul Myhre, Wabash Center, Presiding

A set of roundtable discussions co-sponsored by the Wabash Center for Teaching and Learning in Theology and Religion.

Joe Blosser, High Point University, Hearing is Believing: The Use of Audio Feedback for Religion Student Papers
Martha Reineke, University of Northern Iowa, On not Dumping Our Students at the Exit Ramp: Synthesizing the Major and Supporting Career Planning in the Senior Seminar

Molly Bassett, Georgia State University, and Rhodora Beaton, St. Catherine University, Learning Outcomes in the Study of Religions: A Conversation about the (In)Tangibles

Joanne Maguire Robinson, University of North Carolina, Charlotte, Teaching About Teaching About Religion
Anna Mercedes, College of Saint Benedict and Saint John's University, Empowering Resistance While Teaching Gender-Based Violence

Amy Merrill Willis, Lynchburg College, Not Just "Happy Hands for Jesus": Service-Learning, Exegesis, and Contextual Hermeneutics

Taylor Halverson, Brigham Young University, To Grade or Not to Grade? Assessing Learning in Theology, Religion, or Biblical Studies Courses

Suzanne Watts Henderson, Queens University, Charlotte, Marketing Biblical Studies for Undergraduates

Russell Arnold, DePauw University, Teaching with Meta-Questions

Jonathan D. Lawrence, Canisius College, Addressing the Faithful (and the Unfaithful): Dealing with Religious Commitment in the Secular Classroom

A19-116

Student, Classroom, Institution, Field: Rethinking Theology and Religious Studies from the Ground Up

Sponsored by the Christianity and Academia Group

Hannah Schell, Monmouth College, Presiding

Monday - 9:00 AM-11:30 AM

McCormick Place North-226

The fields of theology and religious studies are constantly in flux, always being reshaped by the ongoing evolution of ideas. These fields are also affected by decisions and practices at the micro-level, including the assumptions held by students who study these fields, the classroom practices that orient the discipline toward certain goals, and the institutional decisions that position these academic disciplines in relation to other fields. In this session, scholars operating from a diverse range of methodological and subdisciplinary assumptions probe the ways that theology and religious studies are being rethought and reshaped from the ground up.

Margaret Adam, University of Glasgow, Christian Theology and the Inadequacy of Religion

Kevin Taylor, Pfeiffer University, Reaching the Postmodern Student with Philosophy and Aesthetics

R. J. Hernandez-Diaz, Iliff School of Theology, and Eu Kit Lim, University of Denver and Iliff School of Theology, Trappings of Authenticity: Teaching Religion to Students of Privilege

Michael DeLashmutt, Luther Seminary, Of Deans and Deacons: Towards a Theology of Academic Administration